- Traveling by road from Dollow to Luuq is extremely difficult, except flight options.
- Belet-hawa District is accessible without significant security incidents affecting movements.
- In Luuq, the security situation is peaceful, but accessibility is limited to a 10 km radius around the town and some southern pastoral settings. Urban and peri-urban areas, as well as IDP sites, have limited accessibility.
- Elwak District faces a delicate and constantly changing security situation, with limited access to villages along the Kenya-Somalia border.
- Garbaharey has regular accessibility within the district and surrounding villages, but areas beyond 30 km are under control and inaccessible.

Bardheere district is partially accessible, with a 12 km radius around Bardheere town, while reaching remote areas poses significant challenges.
