Thirty-six million persons in Africa have been forcibly displaced from their homes due to conflict, violence, natural disasters, and climate change. Although Africa hosts 1/3 of the world's refugees and internally displaced persons (IDPs), little global attention and few resources are devoted to refugee resilience in Africa. Refugees, IDPs, and returnees face unfair policies and social stigmas that disproportionately exclude them from economic opportunities.

With over 10 years of experience, Inkomoko provides business advisory, direct financing, market linkages and advocacy services to help refugee and local entrepreneurs improve their families' economic standing, create jobs, and provide crucial goods for their communities.
