Main Discussion points

1. Partners need to carry out a feasibility study of their location before choosing CBT as a modality as this will determine how effective and efficient cash modality will be to the beneficiaries. Underlying protection issues, availability and capacity of financial service providers in the community should also be established in the feasibility study. The presentation covers the key points to consider in a project cycle from inception/preparedness to evaluation stage.

2. Fuel strategy & GBV prevention in South Sudan (Use of fuel efficient stoves in Kajo Keji – a project by Titi Foundation). Titi Foundation implemented a 6-month project in Kajo Keji in central Equatoria targeting 1,400 beneficiaries who are mainly women. The immediate outcomes of the project were GBV risk reduction, 45% reduction in rape cases, assault & abductions associated with firewood collection as well as increased speed of cooking as a result of the efficient fuel efficient (environment friendly) energy saving stoves and brickettes.
