Registration is now open for the EMMA Training in Nairobi, Kenya

March 17-21, 2013| Location: TBD

EMMA – the Emergency Market Mapping and Analysis Toolkit – is used by humanitarian staff to better understand and make use of market-systems in emergency situations. It adds value to established humanitarian practices in diverse contexts because EMMA tools are adaptable, rough-and-ready, speed-oriented processes designed to reflect the information constraints, and urgency of decision-making required in the first few weeks of a crisis. The EMMA process is intended to bring integrated flexibly into response planning.

EMMA results have already been used to guide interventions in a variety of countries – most recently in response to the emergencies in Lebanon and Horn of Africa – as well as previous responses in Haiti, Kyrgyzstan, Pakistan. For more information visit the EMMA website.

This is an advanced training designed for people who have displayed leadership within their organizations. It will introduce experienced humanitarian practitioners to the EMMA approach, with the expectation that participants will be able to conduct and lead EMMA assessments after completion of the course. The training will include a field component, and is appropriate for those who have limited market analysis experience as well as those who want to use their market analysis skills in new ways.

This will be the IRC’s last training of the year, so take advantage of this opportunity to contribute to improving market-oriented humanitarian emergency response around the world. If demand is sufficient, we will host a second simultaneous training. Registration will close on February 21st 2014.

Register online here!

For inquiries about EMMA and EMMA training, please contact Eva Conway (Eva.Conway@rescue.org) or Greg Matthews (Gregory.Matthews@rescue.org)

Training Hosted By: