Reported response in April 2018

In April, the Food Security Cluster response has maintained a focus on camp assistance to food insecure beneficiaries and seen a trend toward cash and food modalities for returnees.

Trend assessment data demonstrates an increasing need for place of origin response, with clear indications of a sustained movement to cash for asset, resilience and livelihood programming required from partners.

Larger scale interventions in newly retaken regions are in planning phase for Agency partners, while many smaller partners are undertaking rapid assessments and implementing cash based assistance packages.

Food based social protection systems are gradually improving though a hiatus is expected post-elections. Support for host populations, IDP’s and refugees is affected by these gaps, and partners are being asked to attend to the most vulnerable populations by way of a response.
